

nVoq and Amedisys Collaborate to Enhance the Clinician Experience

nVoq's cloud-based, speech recognition solutions enable Amedisys to empower their clinicians with time saving, accurate and HIPAA compliant speech technology

Boulder CO, – November 12, 2019 – nVoq, a leading provider of HIPAA compliant speech recognition solutions for the healthcare industry, is pleased to announce its partnership with Amedisys, Inc. (NASDAQ: AMED), America's leading independent home health, hospice and personal care company. The partnership will leverage nVoq's innovative technology platform, which supports both mobile and care center-based clinicians, within Amedisys' home health and hospice footprint spanning 38 US states and over 300 locations.

nVoq's state-of-the-art dictation solution, nVoq.Mobile Voice, enables Amedisys clinicians to quickly and accurately capture patient narratives at the point of care – streamlining and simplifying the caregiver workflow. These same capabilities plus value-added automations can be harnessed by desktop users where needed, also through the nVoq platform.

“Amedisys is committed to providing our caregivers with the right tools to offer the best possible care for our patients,” said Chris Gerard, Amedisys, Chief Operating Officer. “We are excited to be a market leader in innovation by equipping our home health and hospice clinicians with nVoq's medically relevant speech to text capability - improving the patient experience, clinician satisfaction, and our business efficiencies.”

“By adopting the nVoq platform, Amedisys should be well positioned to address the increasingly complex operating challenges of the Home Health and Hospice Industry,” said Debbi Gillotti, Chief Operating Officer of nVoq. “We greatly appreciate the spirit of partnership that's been present since Day One of our relationship with Amedisys and look forward to continued collaboration.”
